

Task 1: Map

Subject: the plans below show the layout of a university's sports center now, and how it will look after redevelopment.

Model Answer #1

Response:

The provided plans delineate the existing configuration of the university's sports center and the proposed modifications following redevelopment.

The redevelopment project heralds substantial changes that will enhance the facility by introducing new amenities while retaining certain key features.

In the current layout, the university sports center comprises a reception area adjacent to the entrance, a gym, a 25-meter pool, a changing room, and two outdoor courts. The proposed design will eliminate the outdoor courts to accommodate a leisure pool. Additionally, a sports shop and a café will be constructed flanking the reception area, further enriching the center's offerings. While the existing gym will remain in its location, it is set to undergo expansion to cater to increased demand for fitness services.

Further modifications include the addition of a sports hall and two dance studios in the space previously occupied by the eastern outdoor courts. The redevelopment will also introduce two new changing rooms on the west and east sides of the facility, thereby improving user convenience. Notably, both the current changing room and the reception area will remain unchanged in the future design. This approach not only preserves essential existing functionalities but also optimizes the overall layout for enhanced user experience.

The maps illustrate the current scenario of a university sports complex and some of its proposed changes.

Overall, the plan proposes expansion for both sides of the complex and the addition of some facilities – specifically leisure pool, café, sports shop, and dance studios.

Looking first to the west side of the sports centre, the outdoor court will be replaced by a recreational swimming pool with direct access to a new dressing room located on the far south-west corner of the building. Additionally, the reception area will be extended, and a sports shop will be opened next to the changing room. The 25m pool situated in the middle of the complex will remain as it is. Similarly, there will be no changes in the reception, changing room, and the seating arrangement around the pool.

Turning to the east side of the map, the outdoor courts located on the east of the centre are going to be removed to make way for new facilities. Looking to the far south-east, the plan proposes the construction of another changing room attached to a brand-new café that will be opened just opposite to the new sports hall. Furthermore, next to the sport's hall, two dance studios will be built side by side, one of them will be adjacent to the newly expanded gym.

Response:

The two maps illustrate the changes that will be made to the university sports center between the current layout and future plans. It is clear that several significant modifications will take place in the university's sports infrastructure. These include the construction of a new leisure pool, a new sports hall, two dance studios, two changing rooms, a sports shop, a café, and an expanded gym.

Examining the changes in more detail, we can see that the two outdoor courts currently located on either side of the central building will no longer be present in the future. Instead, this space will be incorporated into the central building to accommodate the new facilities. A leisure pool will be situated to the west of the original changing room, while the new sports hall will be located next to the seating area.

Two new dance studios will be placed to the east of the sports hall, and the existing gym will be extended to align with the new dance studio. Additionally, two new changing rooms will be built in the southern corners of the new central building, allowing for more players to change into their sports attire and take breaks.

The maps also indicate that changes will occur in the areas near the main entrance. The area in front of the reception is set to expand, and a new sports shop will be established to the southwest of the reception area. Meanwhile, a new café will be located to the southeast, offering visitors and players delicious food and juice.
