

Task 1: Multiple Graphs

Subject: The line graphs below show the subscriptions to mobile and fixed phone lines in four different countries between 2005 and 2015. Summarise the information by selecting and reporting the main features and make comparisons where relevant.

Model Answer #1

Response:

The graph illustrates the subscriptions to mobile and fixed phone lines in four different countries between 2005 and 2015. This essay will summarize the key trends and compare the data.

Overall, the UK exhibited the most stability compared to the other countries. Mobile subscriptions started at over 100 per 100 people in 2005, rising slightly to 120 by 2007 and remaining stable until 2015. In contrast, Uruguay demonstrated significant growth, starting at 40 subscriptions in 2005 and peaking at 170 in 2013.

Moving on to fixed telephone subscriptions, the UK recorded the highest number at around 60 subscriptions throughout the period, despite a slight decline of about 10 subscriptions by 2015. Meanwhile, subscription numbers in India and Eritrea remained consistently low, ending at just 5 per 100 people. In Uruguay, fixed phone subscriptions hovered between 32 and 33 over the years, showing minimal fluctuation.

In conclusion, mobile subscriptions generally showed an upward trend, particularly in Uruguay, while fixed telephone subscriptions were more stable but declined slightly in most countries, with India and Eritrea consistently lagging behind.

Evaluation:

Overall Band Score: 9

Task Response (9): The report successfully addresses all parts of the task and provides a comprehensive overview of the key trends and comparisons.

Coherence & Cohesion (9): The report is well-organized and easy to follow, with a clear progression of ideas and effective use of cohesive devices.

Lexical Resource (8.5): The report demonstrates a wide range of vocabulary used accurately and appropriately, contributing to a sophisticated and natural tone.

Grammatical Range & Accuracy (9): The report exhibits excellent control of grammar and punctuation, resulting in clear and error-free writing.

Model Answer #2

Response:

The line graphs illustrate the number of mobile and fixed phone line subscriptions in four distinct countries from 2005 to 2015.

Overall, it is evident that the number of mobile phone subscriptions increased in the period of 10 years for all four countries, with Uruguay having the most dramatic increase. As for fixed telephone subscriptions, the UK and India saw a decrease in subscriptions. Meanwhile, the number of subscriptions in Eritrea and Uruguay slightly increased during this time period.

Initially, Uruguay had a smaller number of subscriptions than the UK at less than 50 subscriptions per 100 people. Meanwhile, the UK had more than double of that than Uruguay in 2005. However, the number of subscribers in Uruguay surpassed that of the UK from 2009 onwards, reaching its peak in 2013 at over 150 subscribers for every 100 individuals. Moreover, the number of subscribers in India increased annually, reaching approximately 75 subscriptions for every 100 individuals.

In contrast, there was a falling number of fixed telephone subscriptions in the UK, dropping by about 10 subscribers per 100 people. Likewise, the number of subscriptions in India also dropped, but by an insignificant amount. Interestingly, the subscriptions in Uruguay saw a slight decrease from 2005 to 2010, but rose back up from 2011 onwards.
