Model Answer #1

Response:

The table provides insights into consumer expenditure on various categories across five countries in the year 2002.

Overall, it is evident that spending habits significantly differ among the countries, particularly highlighting the variations in the allocation of funds towards food, clothing, and education/leisure.

In terms of food, drinks, and tobacco, Turkey emerged as the highest spender, with an impressive 32.14% of its total consumer spending allocated to this category. Following closely was Ireland, which earmarked 28.91% of its expenditure for similar items. Italy and Spain displayed more moderate spending levels, at 16.36% and 18.80%, respectively, while Sweden recorded the least allocation at 15.77%. This indicates a pronounced inclination towards food-related spending in Turkey and Ireland compared to the other nations.

Regarding clothing and footwear, consumer spending remained notably lower across all nations. Ireland led with 6.43% of its spending directed towards this category, with Turkey slightly trailing at 6.63%. Italy and Spain had relatively similar expenditures at 9.00% and 6.51%, respectively. Sweden recorded the lowest commitment at just 5.40%. When it comes to leisure and education, the proportions were generally minimal, with Turkey again leading at 4.35%, followed by Ireland with 2.21%. Spain showed the least emphasis on this category, with a mere 1.98% of its total expenditure.
